DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on February 15, 2008 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Winslow et al. (Reference U.S. Patent "5,885,299").

Winslow et al. discloses a spinal surgical instrument (100) comprising: an outer cannula (110) having a proximal end, distal end and an outer lumen passing there between (see Figure 2 below), the distal end of the outer cannula configured to releasably mount to a securing arrangement for a spinal implant; an inner cannula (118) having a proximal end and a thread (144) configured to threadably engage a portion of the spinal implant (see Fig. 10A), a distal end and an inner lumen passing there between (see Figure 2 below), the inner cannula (118) being axially moveable within the outer lumen of the outer cannula (col. 4, lines 27-39); a fixing member (132) having a proximal end and a distal end (see Figure 2 below), the fixing member (132) positioned within the inner lumen and including an arrangement (col. 4, lines 50-58).

The inner cannula (118) is axially moveable within the outer lumen of the outer cannula (110; col. 4, lines 27-31). The engagement structure (114) at the distal end of the outer cannula (110) is configured to releasably engage a locking nut. It is noted that the distal end of the cannula is capable of being configured to releasably engage a locking nut if one so desires to do so. The outer cannula (110) includes an exterior surface contour to facilitate gripping of the outer cannula (110; see Figure 1 below).

The distal end of the inner lumen includes an axially directed shoulder that can abut against a proximal end of the spinal implant (col. 4, lines 34-39). The distal end of the inner lumen includes threads for threadedly engaging a portion of the spinal implant (col. 4, lines 40-49). It is noted that the distal end of the inner lumen disclosed by Winslow has an implant engaging structure that is capable of performing the functions of the claimed invention. The spinal surgical instrument (100) further includes a driver portion (see Figure 1 below). The inner cannula including threads on an interior surface of the inner lumen; the distal end of the fixing member (132) includes exterior threads (44); and threading the exterior threads of the fixing member with the interior threads of the inner cannula provides for advancing and retracting the fixing member (132) within the inner lumen of the inner cannula (118; col. 4, lines 66-67 and col. 5, lines 1-2).

With regard to the statements of intended use and other functional statements, they do not impose any structural limitations on the claims distinguishable over Winslow et al. ("for advancing and retracting the fixing member within the inner lumen of the inner cannula"; "configured to engage with the exterior surface contour of the outer cannula"), which is capable of being used as claimed if one so desires to do so. In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). Furthermore, the law of anticipation does not require that the reference "teach" what the subject patent teaches, but rather it is only necessary that the claims under attack "read on" something in the reference. Kalman v. Kimberly Clark Corp., 218 USPQ 781 (CCPA 1983). Furthermore, the manner in which a device is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987).
